NO. 44

Elect Gov. Black Tuesday

Kentuckians! The issues are clear! On its record in State and Nation, a united Democracy asks you to answer these questions by your votes on Tuesday, November 4th.

Will a Ringing Message of Cheer go to that sick chamber in Washington, or will Kentucky go under the cloud of support of those men who are seeking to discredit America's Greatest Statesman, purely for partisan Reasons?

Will Kentucky onward to four years of progress under the able leadership of Governor James D. Black, or will it become a pawn in the hands of A. T. Hert, whose sole use for our State is the furtherance of personal ambition?

Morrow's Todays Are All Yesterdays

Seemingly, he does not know that it is Gov. Black who is his opponent in the present race. His entire campaign has been one of "what he would have done."

He has said he would have kicked out the School Book Commission, though even he must have known that that would have made him a lawbreaker. The question naturally arises—would he, as governor, care for the laws of the state?

He has criticized the new tax law, though he knows that he gave it his endorsement and that it bears the name of a fellow Republican. Not he—but Gov. Black, instead—has made constructive criticism of this law.

He has continually talked of "cleaning house at Frankfort" and charged the maintenance of useless offices—yet to repeated demands he has not dared name one charge against any man nor specifically state one office he considered useless.

Far Out of Step With Kentucky's Progress

Morrow has gone far back to Augustus E. Willson's administration for comparison of expenditures. By doing this, he has shown a lamentable lack of knowledge of the costs of today and of the yesterday in which he has been living.

He has shown, too, a surprising lack of knowledge of the onward sweep of progress that Kentucky has been making.

Seemingly he does not know that since Gov. Willson's term a Good Roads Department has been established and it has built 1,740 miles of good roads, at a cost to the state of $3,040,911.00.

Seemingly he does not know that Kentucky now has 13,000 rural schools while under the Willson administration there were but 8,000. Is it any wonder $2,800,000 more has been spent for educational purposes?

Not Too Late, Judge!

Judge Bethelum, it is not too late! You publicly stated that you would withdraw the Republican nominee could it be shown that he had a hand in the tobacco cases of Grant County.

At the same time your candidate was admitting that he wrote a letter opposing the pardon of the five farmers convicted. You need not even take his word for it. Attorney General Palmer will tell you, as he has told all of Kentucky in a published letter, that the files in his office at Washington show that Morrow did oppose the pardon that was rightfully granted these men.

Make good your word. Your candidate's guilt is proven. It is up to you.

Ballard Self-Confessed Profiteer

Thurston Ballard, the multi-millionaire president of Ballard Mills, of Louisville, was the man chosen by A. T. Hert for his hand-picked Republican ticket as the candidate for Lieutenant Governor. A close personal and business friend of Mr. Hert's, with ample funds at his disposal for campaign purposes, it is easy to see why he was chosen for as the nominee for this office.

Admits Selling His Flour at $1.10 Less in New Orleans Than in His Own State.

This is the man who is running with Mouth-Piece Morrow at the head of the Republican ticket—the man who, by his own admission, pleaded guilty to being a profiteer. Not satisfied with profiteering, the defense he made of his action is a slap at the people of Kentucky. The reason he gave is that he sells his flour for cash in New Orleans—as though Kentuckians could not pay cash!

Shall A. T. Hert Rule Kentucky?

Hark to What Chairman Rhea Said of A. T. Hert, the Republican "Boss" of Louisville, in His Speech at the Opening of the Democratic State Campaign at Hopkinsville.

"Shall A. T. Hert, lately of Indiana, now of Kentucky, be allowed to name the members of the State Tax Commission? Shall he and his millions dominate the politics of this state for the next four years? This is the most vital issue facing the people of the State today."

"Shall Mr. Hert, with the aid of Thurston Ballard, the profiteer, and the other millionaire candidates on the Republican ticket, be allowed to take over the State government outright? Behind Mr. Morrow's booming voice is the cunning hand of Hert. Morrow is the mere mouth-piece for Hert. The voice is that of Jacob, but the hand that of Esau. Shall Hert build a bridge from the Louisville City Hall to the State Capitol? Shall the Louisville Republican machine extend its sway to Frankfort?"

DO KENTUCKIANS WANT TO SEE HIM USE THE GOVERNOR'S MANSION AS A STEPPING-STONE TO WASHINGTON?

NICK'S HARD FATE

One Romanoff to Whom Country Has Been Ungrateful.

Story of Great Russian Military Commander Lost Amazing Romance of the War—His Splendid Generalship Is Recalled.

From March, 1917, till October, 1918, Grand Duke Nicholas Romanoff, former commander in chief of the Russian armies and one of the most brilliant generals of the great war, was a prisoner in the town of Yalta in the Crimea. He is now in Milan with his family, comfortably housed. The story of "Big Nick" is one of the most amazing romances of the war, the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times states.

When the Bolsheviks gained control of Russia, Nicholas was residing at Tiflis, where he had been governor under the czar and under the Tsarist regime. He was summoned to Yalta by the Bolshevik authorities and obeyed the summons. His brother, his wife, his sister-in-law and other members of his family and his suite were imprisoned with him. Twenty-five Bolshevik soldiers were detailed to guard the distinguished prisoners.

Late in the summer of 1918 it was decided by the Yalta soviet to execute all the prisoners. The Bolshevik guards absolutely declined to permit the sentence of death to be executed and sent the firing squad back to headquarters. Three times thereafter executioners were sent to kill the prisoners, but in each instance the guard prevented the carrying-out of the sentence.

When the Germans came to Yalta Nicholas declined to permit the Germans to enter the house that had been his prison, declaring his utter loathing of all things German. Soon after this the allies took Yalta and Nicholas was released.

All the private fortune of the grand duke has been lost. His funds have been confiscated. At Milan he lives comfortably, but very modestly.

Dempsey owes much to Grand Duke Nicholas. He was, in fact, a staunch upholder of the old Russian absolutism. But first of all Nicholas was a Russian. He knew Russia's salvation depended on the vanquishing of Germany. He was a leader of consummate skill and it is more than probable that only his splendid generalship prevented Germany from winning the war in the early stages. His retreat before the tremendous attack of Mackensen and Hindenburg, which resulted in the saving of the Russian armies, was one of the most notable chapters of the war.

Between the Bolshevik Russia of today and the old autocratic Russia for which Nicholas fought, practical students and statesmen find little choice, but it must be admitted that the autocracy produced great men, while the gutter communism has found only scoundrels for its leaders. In the awarding of justice there should be some provision for this gigantic Russian, who in 1914 and 1915 prevented Germany from marching to easy victory.

No Horses on Largest Farm.

A 200,000-acre farm, the largest in the world, which is the direct result of the government's efforts to stimulate the growing of wheat, is described by Robert H. Moulton in Everybody's. "The farm is devoted entirely to wheat, and it produces somewhere around the country's average of twenty-eight bushels per acre, which is practically certain. It will add approximately 5,070,000 bushels to the 1919 wheat crop," says the writer.

"All of the work is being done with tractors. Last fall when the first ground was broken, there were fifty tractor drivers at work tearing up the prairie soil. They plow on an average of one acre a minute for the working day. A record was made one day of 150 acres turned at a break. All the seeding, harvesting etc., will also be done by tractor, and then, of course, there are the teaming machines. Hence, the absolute non-necessity of horses about this place."

Price of Labor.

An Indiana suffragist, who is a widow teacher, went to her door the other morning to buy some blueberries of a young country woman reported the Indianapolis News. The berries were free, but the suffragist wished to pay them at a lower price than they were offered. "Why, they just grow along the roadside so plentifully that all you have to do is pick them," she told the woman. "I don't think you are charging a rather exorbitant price for your labor."

His Resolve.

"It is better to do your living early in the season."

"I know that axiom," said the less-bill manager, "but if I happen to win a few cases I'll endeavor to bear it with resignation!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No Loss of Animation.

"I suppose Crimson Gulch is quieter since the bar closed."

"Not yet," said Cactus Joe. "All you've got to do is to say 'prohibition' and everybody begins to argue at the top of his voice."

VERMIN OLD PEST OF ARMIES

Reference to Them Found in Writings of the Romans, and in English Literature.

The newspapers have had much to say about the "delousing" of the returning troops, Phillip Hale writes in the Boston Herald. The word is not a pretty one and it is not to be found in the dictionaries, but the war has brought with it many new words, some of which will disappear, some of which will soon be regarded as orthodox and of good and regular standing.

No soldier need be ashamed of necessary submission to the process. It may console him to recall the case of Thomas Otway, an Oxford man, the author of "Venice Preserved" and "The Orphan." As a cornet in a regiment of horse, he joined in 1678 the army under Monmouth in Flanders. It was reported that he came back from Flanders "mangy and covered with vermin." Rochester taunted him with this in his "Session of the Poets." It should also be remembered that when the troops were disbanded and recalled, the money voted by the commons for their payment was misappropriated. The soldiers were paid only by debentures, and the credit of these was so low that they were hardly salable.

It was observed in the sixteenth century that "lice cometh also of that cloth that is trained in the wool with the fat or grease of a horse or of a swine, and therefore the northern cloths worn of a sweating body do breed lice in 12 hours." The "junior" of an individual had much to do with the character of the pest. Lice generated of sanguine humor were red and great; of phlegmatic, white; of choleric, yellow, long, swift and sharp; of melancholic, ashen colored, lean and slow in moving. Any one of these pests "perleth more in the skin with the feet and with creeping, than he doth with biting. . . . And the femer that a louse is, the sharper she biteth and grypeth." There were many approved remedies even in the older Pliny's time, thus: "The old skin or slough that snakes do cast off in the spring, whosoever drineth in his ordinary drink, it will kill all the vermin of the body within three days."

Story of a Dog.

"Marathon races in the woods will never become universal for the reason that speed and stamina like that of Buell Crannell's dog are not universal in the four-footed hunters," says Warwick S. Carpenter, secretary of the conservation commission. "Mr. Crannell lives at West Glens Falls, and while hunting near there recently his dog picked up a fox track. The dog was picked up next day near Cranberry lake, more than seventy miles away."

"Accounts do not state whether the dog was still going strong or whether he might have taken the fox back to Mr. Crannell, but simply that identification of the dog was made by the conservation commission license tag and that Mr. Crannell went after the dog."

"The moral of all this is that if one owns a dog good enough to run a fox through two counties she should surely be protected by an identification disk."—New York Times.

Salutes.

Some clever Englishman, commenting on French politeness, once remarked that when a Frenchman bows, two-thirds of the bow is to himself. That may be true, and we have to admit that even the other third is quite a fraction more than most Anglo-Saxons offer.

Saluting is the same proposition. A snappy salute pulled by a buck to the most second of second. Lieutenant draws heavy interest; and the colonel who jerks his hand a few centimeters from his still attired cigar is only insulting himself and the army.

If some privates were a little more polite to themselves, the saluting trap never would be sprung and the joke would all be on the other side of the military fence.—Stars and Stripes.

Something Worth While.

Banks—I never was so disappointed in my life!

Phyle—What's the trouble?

"In the city the other day I saw an aquatic exhibition advertised—"

"Yes—"

"And I immediately bought tickets."

"You were disappointed?"

"Yes, all I saw was a lot of men in diving suits."

"But what did you expect in an aquatic exhibition?"

"Girls in bathing suits, at least!"—Youngstown Telegram.

Saved Venus de Milo From Huns.

M. Heron de Villefosse, the eminent French archaeologist, whose death has just taken place, was for many years head of the Greek and Roman sculpture department of the Louvre. Twice in his career he had to superintend the removal of that priceless art treasure the Venus of Milo to a place of safety—in 1870, and again in 1914. In each case the same enemy was concerned. Heron de Villefosse was seventy-four years old.

Going to Look Him Up.

"That fellow Gillingham called me 'Old Silenus,'" remarked Mr. Gillingham. "He seemed to think it a great joke." "What are you going to do about it?"

"I haven't decided yet. I have forgotten about all I ever knew about Silenus, but I have no idea that he was neither a pillar in the church nor an ornament to society."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Winter Months Are Approaching

Heavy wearing apparel must soon be the order of the day if comfort and health is to be preserved. A few good warm clothes will be much cheaper and much more comfortable than sickness and doctor's bills, and after all, the clothes will be provided.

Don't take any chances; supply your needs beforehand; be ready for the worst kind of weather if it should come.

This store proposes to furnish everything you need in the weight you need it to make you comfortable, no matter where you work, and the price in every instance is much lower than present market conditions warrant.

James A. Garfield,

No young woman can have a better safeguard against adversities of fortune, or a better resource in time of need, than a knowledge of bookkeeping and business affairs.

Harriet Beecher Stowe,

Here Are THREE BIG QUESTIONS

No. 1—Do you expect to make your own living?

No. 2—Are you interested in making your living in the easiest, best way—the way that will leave something over and above your living expenses?

No. 3—Have you given enough attention to conditions to understand fully that to make more than a living you must be educated to do some one thing well?

If your answer to No. 1 is "YES," the best way to answer No. 3 is—enroll with us and equip yourself to be an efficient Stenographer and Bookkeeper.

The answer to question No. 2 is the result of answering No. 3 put into practice.

The position of a stenographer is the best training ground for a young man, if he has any brains, and if the man he works for has any brains, because he can learn more in that way than any other I know of.—Hugh Chalmers.

KING OF ALL "RAINMAKERS"

Secret of Success of Solly Greenup,
Who Is Well Remembered in the West, Was Simple.

Given an ingenious mind and an eye to business, a live man can make money out of almost any old thing.

Perhaps you remember the extraordinary success scored some years ago by Solly Greenup, the rainmaker. If not, you can read his record in a portfolio of newspaper clippings collected all the way from Nome to San Diego, from eastern Oregon to western Kansas.

Solly Greenup, indeed, occupied for a while a position unique in the annals of meteorology. Scientists might doubt and cynics might scoff, but whenever Solly went after the rain clouds he always got 'em. Moreover he didn't work on "the heads-I-win, tails-you-lose" principle of some other rainmakers. Solly Greenup, when he once decided he could produce rain in a given district, always backed his opinion with hard cash. If he asked the farmers to put up $1,000 for an inch of rain, he put up another $1,000 himself as a forfeit in case he failed. And he always won.

Greenup never explained his methods. All the farmers wanted was the rain. All Greenup wanted was the money. With the result both were satisfied. His apparatus consisted of a flag pole, an electric battery, a kite with a metal tail and an air balloon filled with a mysterious gas. If scientists demanded the reason for these contrivances, he shook his head and smiled.

Sometimes Greenup would have to stay a long time in a locality before he could find the exact combination necessary to coax the wet forces into action. Sometimes he had to confess that the dries were too strong for him. But as soon as he posted his forfeit and set up his apparatus the desired moisture followed in a few days.

Once in Elsinore valley he gave the ground a good soaking for a paltry $2,500, thus saving a $1,000,000 grain crop. Of course he made a tidy fortune, yet at the time no one considered his charges exorbitant. And everybody admitted he was a good sport. As he grew wealthy Greenup never gave himself frills nor assumed the title of "professor." These things were afterward remembered to his credit.

A few years ago Greenup went permanently out of the rainmaking business. In a street car accident he lost his left foot, which had to be amputated above the ankle. After that for love or money he refused to experiment with the weather.

When the secret of his success was finally revealed some carping moralists called him make-believe. He never claimed, like another famous person, age, to be in partnership with the Almighty. But at least he had done something that nobody in the world had ever done before.

He had capitalized a corn.

Big Private Telephone Exchange. The size of the private telephone exchange grows with the erection of every hotel or office building of any considerable proportions. The largest ever constructed is that of a New York hotel which has recently opened to the public. It occupies 3,165 square feet of floor space, having an operating room 110 feet long by 15 feet wide, a terminal room 30 feet long and 25 feet wide, a rest room 23 feet by 15 feet and a locker and washroom 30 feet by 14 feet. The operating force consists of one chief operator, one assistant chief operator, eight supervisors and 110 attendants. The switchboard consists of twenty-three positions. Thirteen positions are equipped with telenographs used for paging and announcing only. The switchboard has a capacity of 3,340 extensions and 180 trunks. The hotel has telephone service in each of its 2,200 rooms, and there are forty public telephone booths served by four switchboards connected with the main switchboard. The following gives some idea of a few of the items which make up part of the telephone system: 630 fuses, 1,170 condensers, 2,400 relays, 5,350 lamps, 38,500 jacks, 750,000 soldered connections, 7,926,000 feet of wire.

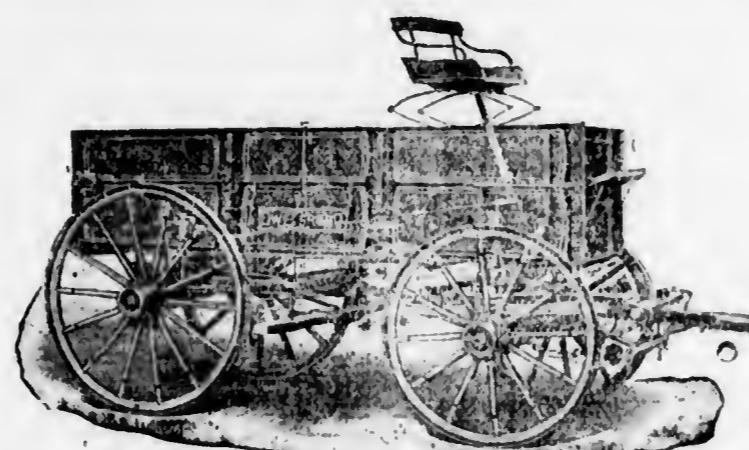

Britons Build Biggest Plane.

The Tarrant Aircraft Construction company of Farnborough, England, has just finished building the biggest airplane in the world. It is a triplane, the middle plane of which is 131 feet wide. Above and below this are two planes, each 98 feet long. All these planes are 15 feet 2 inches deep. The body is 76 feet long (20 feet longer than the biggest biplane), and the height is 37 feet. The pilot's seat juts out 12 feet beyond the line of the planes. The body of the machine resembles a whale in length and girth, with a great blunt-ended nose. Between the planes are six Napier-Dion engines, each developing 500 horsepower. Four of them operate two-bladed tractor propellers; two of them four-bladed "pusher" propellers.

"His Majesty, The American"

Doglass Fairbanks is recognized as the greatest entertainer on the screen and do you know that this is his latest production, and given up to be his very best? He, with Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and J. W. Griffith have started a new producing company, and this is the first production. It is just now starting in the big cities. We paid a big price for it because all of our patrons clamor for Fairbanks, and this being the best season of the year we wanted to give them all a opportunity to see it. There is nothing greater we can offer you. Don't deprive any member of your family of this great treat. 8 reels—20c.

WM. S. HART,

in

"Breed Of Men"

We need not comment on Bill Hart. This is one of his real westerns. Also Fatty Arbuckle in "The Other Man." Oh, boy, come early, or stand for 15c.

WALLACE REID,

in

"The Man From Funeral Range"

This is a screen adaptation of the play, "Broken Threads." It shows how an unscrupulous lawyer will work to sentence an innocent man and how the law can be made to work an awful injustice. This is a great western play with Wallace Reid at his best. Also one of Foxes 2-reel Sunshine comedies. All for 15c.

Miss Emma Clark, who has a position with the Hancock County Clarion, was a pleasant visitor at The Herald office while in town last week.

J. Y. Blageman, of the Concord neighborhood, has sold his farm to A. J. Hines and has bought the Bradley property on Fredericka street and will move into it in the near future.

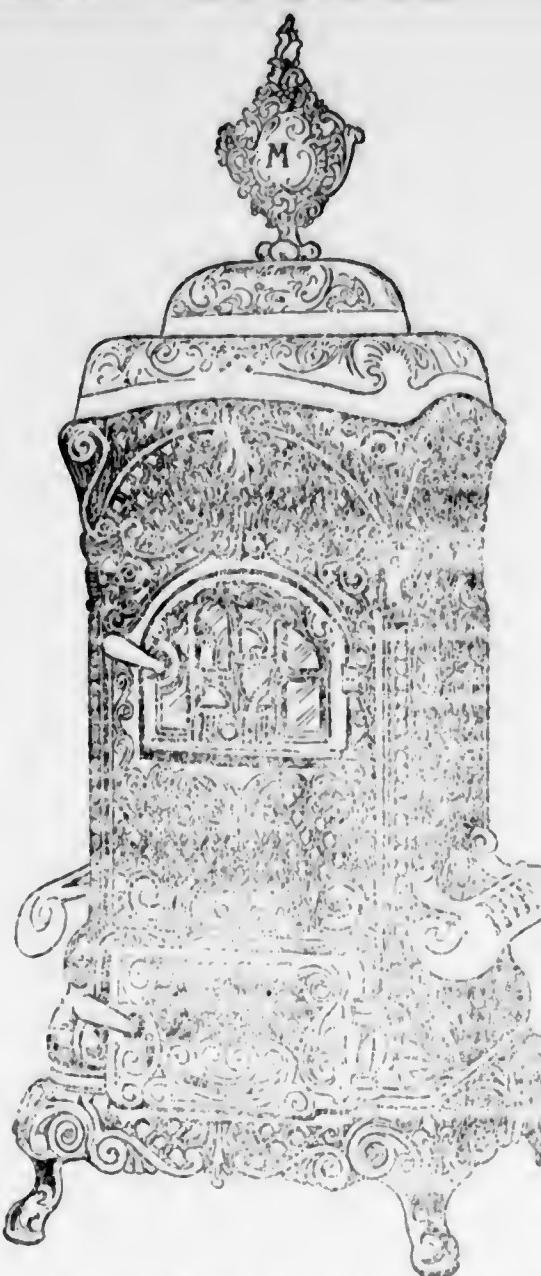

Mrs. N. J. Baxter, of Griffin, Ga., is spending a few weeks here as the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. C. Porter. She will also visit other relatives near here before returning to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bishop, who have been living in Winchester, are moving to Greenville, where Mr. Bishop has a position in a bank. They stopped over in Hartford Friday to visit friends here.

Messrs. Archie Felix and Byron Black, of Griffith, Ky., who have been visiting their uncle, Mr. Frank Black and family, and other relatives, near here, for the past two weeks returned to their home Saturday.

Mr. E. P. Thomas and daughter, Mrs. E. G. Schrader, left Sunday for Fairmont to visit their son, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Taylor Robertson, of California. Guests were laid for the following guests, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Thomas Riley and little daughter, Lola Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell B. Sutlender, Mr. Fred Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Taylor Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Robertson.

Commander Eva Bennett of the Woman's Benefit Association, of the Maccabees, and Mrs. Lola Eastman, State Commander, were at Beaver Dam Monday in the interest of a Chapter of the lodge there.

Moore's Airtight Heater

Easy to carry; invert the foot rails and use them as carriers.

Heat the whole house by attaching a pipe to the large double heater collar and conduct as much heat as desired to upper rooms.

Surface ground ash door and draft slide make an air-tight door, the joints are ground to fit within 1-1/16 of an inch. The draft slide lever works smoothly and perfectly.

The ash pit surface is ground. The door and pit are clamped together and drilled in jigs when door is closed and locked. Moore's Air-Tight Heater is both air and water-tight. Nickel parts are beautiful and elaborate.

TRAVEL IN JAPAN

HOTEL CUSTOMS SOMETHING EMBARRASSING TO EUROPEANS.

TAKING BATH IN PUBLIC, IN WATER THAT WOULD BOIL A LOBSTER, IS, OR USED TO BE, IN THE NATURE OF TORTURE.

With the advent of the "modern hotel" in Japan the old inns, or rest-houses, have been to a large extent relegated to obscurity, but some still survive in parts where European travelers seldom penetrate. The kind of welcome accorded to visitors in one of the village inns is very far removed from western ideas of hospitality. Here is the interesting experience of a traveler as related in The Caterer and Hotelkeepers' Gazette:

"As soon as I arrived I was conducted by the polite hostess into the chief guestroom, which looked out upon the cool orchard of a temple.

"Cushions were brought in, and bright kimonos. I took off my thin English clothes, and put on first the lower kimono, made of cotton; and then a gaudy silk one, bright with the colors of the hotel.

"The room, like all Japanese rooms, was bare except for a single decoration. There is always a special corner for the room's ornament, which is sometimes a vase of flowers, sometimes a painting upon silk or a woodcut.

The subjects are not seldom such as bring a blush to the European cheek, but they have no such effect on the Japanese, who seem more concerned with the arrangement than the subject of the ornaments. There are strict rules for decoration; it is bad form, for example, that flowers of different colors should not be mixed in one vase.

"At length, because I was finishing a low table and a brazier were brought in and set in front of me and my hostess.

"Every time I thought I had finished, the hostess or one of the maids would trip in with another tray of dishes and put them before me on the table. And I not been able to use chopsticks before, I should certainly have become expert by the end of that meal.

"A little while after the meal—for it did end at last—I was told that the bath was ready. I was taken to the open courtyard and introduced to the arrangements there.

"Two huge barrels were sunk in the earth, one filled with hot, the other with cold water. There was a thin screen on two sides—not against prying eyes, but simply to keep off the wind. Indeed, as I began to take off my kimono an interested audience of both sexes turned to watch me. This was unpleasant, and I did my best to dodge their gaze behind the screen.

"I might have saved myself the trouble. A moment later, in reply to the calls of the innkeeper and his wife, their daughter came up hastily to bathe me, as her duty was. She was not in the least embarrassed—and I soon had other things to worry me, for when, at the young lady's direction, I let myself down into the hot tub I discovered that, in the usual Japanese fashion, the heat of the water in it was not less than 115 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Up to my neck in that hot bath I suffered exquisite torture, which turned to the most exquisite agony when I stepped on the still hotter kettle lying on the bottom of the tub. The innkeeper's daughter pulled me out, red as a lobster and very nearly boiled. She dropped me, more dead than alive, into the cold tub, pulled me out again, and dried me.

"Then she bowed politely, and left me to return to my room."

HUSBANDS ARE HOPING.

Recently an Irvington woman invited a few of her friends to play cards during the afternoon. There was a strong intuition that the highest score would be rewarded with a prize.

That stimulated interest to a degree.

The women had visions of the ordinary prizes given for card proficiency. One of them thought of a nicely hemmed towel, another saw visions of a cut-glass tumbler, and still another dreamed of something else. There was but one table and as the hostess was merrily the contest was wholly between the remaining three. Finally the games were over and the scores submitted. Then the hostess came in with a big glass of currant jelly and presented it as the prize of the afternoon. She placed the currants in her own garden and had table the jelly herself.

There is hope in the hearts of some Irvington husbands that the fad of giving real food as prizes will grow. Then, if their wives are good enough to let them when husbands come home in the evening.—Indianapolis News.

NO JUGO-SLAV RACE.

There is no strictness in such thing as a Jugo-Slav. There are Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, all of whom speak the same language, with variations, and are more or less of the same nationality. There is a religious question among Jugo-Slavs, which has, on occasion, been stressed by the intriguing imperialist politicians on the borders who have been anxious to prevent national unity. The Serbs being of the Greek, or Orthodox church, and the Croats and Slovenes of the Roman church. There are no more than 12,000,000 of them altogether, but the territory of the new nation is larger than that of Great Britain.

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO PROPOSE

BRITISH GIRL CLAIMS THAT CONDITIONS FOLLOWING WAR HAVE MADE OLD IDEAS LOOK FOOLISH.

Among the last rights of women to be fought is the right to propose. It is the inevitable consequence of the vote and of the war. The position of woman with regard to marriage has entirely changed, and the sooner it is recognized the better. Up till now women have properly not proposed, because it meant virtually: "Will you keep me?"

Now that a woman can be as independent as a man she need have no scruples on that score. "A Girl From the War" writes in the continental edition of the London Mail:

In every other direction the position of men and women, with regard to marriage, is equal. It is quite ridiculous that it should be an honorable thing in a man to love a woman who does not return his affection, and yet be a disgrace to a woman to love unmasked. A proposal from the man clears the air, and it would be the same with one from the woman.

In the present condition of things a woman often wastes the best years of her life on hope. It would be much better if she could say in the beginning: "I like you, and if you like me as much as I like you, let us spend our lives together." It would be quite simple for the man to reply, if he were of a different mind: "I am sorry. Of course, I like you, but I do not feel like going into partnership."

The woman would then put him out of her mind and go about her business. Broken hearts heal in time, and it is possible that hearts would never get beyond the wounded stage if this plan were adopted.

There is a serious reason why it should be adopted. Some badly wounded men are feeling much as if they had changed places with the women. They do not have to say, "Will you keep me?" when they propose, but what to them is almost as bad, "Will you keep yourself?"

It would be a great relief to many crippled men in love if proposals were taken out of men's hands.

In the present circumstances no nice girl could bring herself to propose, however willing she is to keep herself, however much she loves the man.

There is no need to fear that the new right would give added license to the other kind of girl. She proposes now, although not in so many words.

CHINESE SALVATION ARMY.

A new element has been added to the night life of Peking and Tien-tsin, strange and yet familiar to occasional sightseers from western countries. The "Chion Shih Chun," or "Save-the-World Army," is conducting its open-air meetings on the street corners of the Chinese cities, and the spectacle reproduces in China a scene that was equally strange in the great cities of England and America when the Salvation army first came into existence. For "Chion Shih Chun" is Chinese for "Salvation army" in a land where the language has no exact verbal equivalent for "salvation" and must do its best by the combination "save-world."

Less than three years ago the Salvation army made its start in China, and a party of forty officers from the West tackled the job of mastering enough of the language to begin operations. At present there are five corps of the "Chion Shih Chun" in Peking, two corps in Tien-tsin, and fourteen scattered throughout the country as far north as the border of Mongolia. In organization the "Chion Shih Chun" is identical with the Salvation army elsewhere and the Chinese salvation soldier lives under the same rules of discipline.—Christian Science Monitor.

NIGHT FLY FISHING.

The question as to whether or not trout will rise to flies by moonlight is one that has long been discussed in the Adirondacks. A number of Adirondack guides have insisted that they have taken good catches of trout by moonlight fishing. Others of the woods brethren, however, have merely smiled when one speaks of snarling the speckled ones under the light of the June moon.

Some fishermen claim to have taken them that way, while others say it is merely a fish story. Apparently about the only way one can prove it to his own satisfaction is to go some moonlight night to waters where they know trout are and try it for themselves.

There is, however, no doubt regarding brown trout taking flies at night, not least in some waters. Arthur Mullin Malone recently secured seven fine brown trout from Salmon river, whose waters were lashed in moonlight at the time.—Saranac Lake Daily Item.

HONOR FOR THE COWBELL.

Never again can the cowbell be looked upon as something merely bucolic, commonplace and utilitarian, connoting at best for the city man memories of idling away a summer holiday in the country. What the cowbell has meant to the country boy in early rising to do stable chores, and tedious hunting through swampy bottom lands for the helter who upturns to have no honing instinct it is rather difficult to express politely. But now the despised cowbell has achieved its apotheosis, for thanks to the ingenuity of a California composer, a set of them, "covering a chromatic range of an octave and a half," was used in the symphonic music of this year's Bohemian Grove play. This, perhaps, in some small degree makes up for the fearful contemporary misuse of an honorable if lowly instrument by jazz bands.

YOUR WAGON SHOULD HAVE AN INTERNATIONAL FIFTH WHEEL

BECAUSE

It distributes the train on the bolster and sandboard.
It supports the bolster when the front gear is turned to the right or left;
It reinforces the bolster and sandboard;

And does away with the chocking motion of the front gear on rough roads and large holes in wood parts.

THE FIFTH WHEEL

Prevents the bolster from striking the circle iron and bending it down;
Stops the pulling loose of sandboard and bolster plates, bending of the king bolt and widening of the king bolt hole, and avoids unsteady drawing of the front gear with the heavy draft;
Prevents a broken bolster or sandboard.

THE WEBER WAGON CARRIES THIS INTERNATIONAL FIFTH WHEEL

We have a number of wagons on display in our store and it would give us pleasure to have you call and let us explain to you the many excellent features embodied in the Weber construction.

We have been advised that wagons will take another $10 advance—you had better see quick while we have got the cheap price on wagons.

JAP INDUSTRY HARD HIT.

During the war the Japanese zinc industry was very prosperous and large profits were made on ore which was imported from Australia and the French Indies. The signing of the armistice, however, has dealt a hard blow to this industry, and it is reported that it costs $200 a ton to produce Japanese zinc, while the market price is only $187 a ton. It is expected that this will result in a request for subsidies and import protection, since the deposits of Japanese ore are of such inferior quality that competition with imported ore cannot be met successfully.

Some fishermen claim to have taken them that way, while others say it is merely a fish story. Apparently about the only way one can prove it to his own satisfaction is to go some moonlight night to waters where they know trout are and try it for themselves.

Strasbourg to Honor De L'Isle.

It is a pleasant detail in the coming erection of a memorial at Strasbourg to Rouget de l'Isle and his "Chant de guerre de l'armée du Rhin," which became "La Marseillaise," that the chairman of the committee in charge bears the name and is a direct descendant of Mayor Dietrich, in whose house the song was first sung. Little enough when De l'Isle composed it did he foresee either that his song would provide inspiration for a French revolution or that time would bring him a permanent memorial in a Strasbourg that had passed out of French possession and come back again. The author himself suffered both by loss of his commission and by imprisonment, first because the adoption of his song by the Revolution made him suspected of revolutionary beliefs by what power still remained to the older government, and later because his lack of enthusiasm for the revolution made him an object of an attack by the new leaders.

Real War Scrap Book.

To keep a scrapbook on the recent war sounds like a Herculean task, but it was really done by a regular, everyday human being, a man from Sentinel, Wmsh. He began in August, 1914, never realizing the enormity of the undertaking, but he stuck to the job and now owns a book containing thousands of columns of war reports and pictures clipped from his favorite papers. It weighs more than 100 pounds, is carefully indexed and promises to be a valuable addition to reference libraries.

Prices for Canadian Wool.

The average value of unwashed wool a pound in Canada was 62 cents to producers in 1918 and 50 cents in 1917; washed, 50 cents in 1918 and 75 cents in 1917.

DIDN'T STAND TEST

Reader's Caustic Criticism of Modern Heroine.

They Lack the "Homey" Qualities of the Characters in the Pages of Dickens, Is One Thing He Has Noticed.

Doctor Peabody picked up the gayly bound novel that lay on his patient's counterpane.

"Well, Hosen," he inquired, "how's the light literature prescription working? Good story? Mighty pretty girl on the cover, anyhow?"

"Ain't read it and ain't n-going to," declared Hosen aggressively. "Girl's pretty enough, but no three hundred pages of her doin's for me. She don't stand the test. They don't any of 'em. Cover or frontispiece; there's only two sorts of 'em, and I don't like either. I ain't perticular whether they're tall or short, skinny or plump, gipsyish or light complected; but I do want 'em nice, likable-lookin' sort of humans—and they ain't. You put 'em to the button test, and it down 'em."

"The button test? What's that?" asked Doctor Peabody.

"Oh, I s'pose there's others," admitted Hosen, "but that's the easiest; just s'pose a feller wants a button sewed on—wants it right off. Well, he hangs his coat on his arm and goes to one of those girls. 'Gwendolen Gertrude,' says he, 'I want to wear this coat, there's a button off. Can you fix it?' Well—" Hosen dispensed the Imperial beauty on the book cover—"just look at her, doc. You know what she says without me tellin' ye. 'Base slave, begone!' or 'Milun, ayunt!' or 'Impudent Rubie, go ask your grandmother!' or some little thing of that sort. That's the general idea; that's the way Gwen-dolen Gertrude looks."

"And there's lots to her—chin up, head back, eyes shut; handsome critters; but gosh! what want to ask a favor of 'em? Less by telephone, so's he could drop the receiver quick before he got an answer. Well, that's some folks' idea of a lovely heroine, I s'pose—but it ain't mine."

"The other kind ain't so dangerous lookin', but she ain't much more use. Just frivolous. Horsy or kitteny, one or other. Elsie Marce, here's a button wants sewin'; s'pose you could do it?" Elsie Marce, she laughs pretty and shows nice teeth and says, please, "Why, yes, of course"; only she's got engagements up to the middle of next week, and, anyways, the buttons she sews ain't warranted to stay on more'n an hour or so; so maybe, after all, 'twould be as well to ask somebody else. Well, that's Elsie Marce; and she ain't my notion of a lovely heroine, either."

"Heroines were different when I was young. Dickens' heroines, now; they was real nice and lovable besides bein' pretty, and their plots looked it. That Little Dot woman with the baby, and that But girl that made the beef-steak puddin'—they'd ha' stood the button test all right."

"Goin', doctor? Say, reach me that seed catalogue off the table fast, won't ye; and, say, if ye would stop to the library as ye pass and ask Bill Hiicks for a copy of Nicholas Nickleby—uhm's such bad print ma won't let me read it in bed—and bring it along next visit, I'd appreciate it a lot. Thank you, doctor! I thought you wouldn't mind."—Youth's Companion.

Famous American Clipper Ships.

In the days of the famous clipper ships, the American vessel was second to none, writes Frederick A. Collins in Bay's Life. No other country could build ships at once so staunch and so speedy. Records were established which have never been surpassed by sailing craft and, even with the use of steam, were not bettered for nearly half a century. In 1852 the Sovereign of the Seas sailed 436 miles in a single day. The Lightning crossed the Atlantic in 13 days 20 hours, and the James Blaine of 2,500 tons made the voyage from Boston to Liverpool in 12 days and 6 hours. Although America led the way with the first transatlantic steamship, she allowed the sovereignty of the seas to slip gradually from her. At the beginning of the war most of her tonnage was afloat on the great lakes or engaged in coastwise traffic, and her deep-sea fleet was small.

POISON LIKE UNTO VENOM OF SNAKES

Professor H. Strauss, M. D., of the Royal Charity Hospital, says, "The cause for an attack of gout, rheumatism, lumbago, is supplied by the increase of uric acid in the blood serum, the result of various causes, the most frequent of which is renal. Before an attack, one suffers sometimes from headache, neuralgia, twinges of pain here and there."

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when the back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; when you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach; or you have rheumatic pains or lumbago, gout, sciatica when the weather is bad, do not neglect the warning, but try simple means. Take six or eight glasses of water during the day, then obtain at your nearest drug store 'An-uric' (anti-uric acid).

This is the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. "An-uric" is an antide for this uric acid poisoning and dissolves uric acid in the body much as hot coffee dissolves sugar. "An-uric" will penetrate into the joints and muscles, and dissolve the poisonous accumulations. It will stamp out toxins. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

Cannot Praise This Remedy too Highly

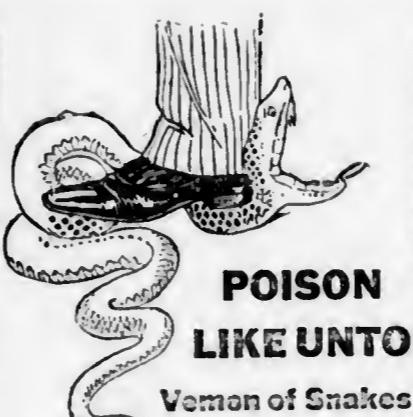

The WAY ONE LADY FEELS AFTER SUFFERING TWO YEARS

Judging from her letter, the misery and wretchedness endured by Mrs. Charlie Taylor, 11, F. D. No. 1, Box 144, Dillon, S. C., must have been terrible. No one, after reading her letter, can continue to doubt the great healing power of PE-RU-NA for troubles due to catarrh or catarrhal conditions in any part of the body. Her letter is an inspiration to every sick and suffering man or woman anywhere. Here it is: "I suffered two years with catarrh of the head, stomach and bowels. Tried two of the best doctors who gave me to. I then took PE-RU-NA and can truthfully say I am well. When I began to use PE-RU-NA, I weighed one hundred pounds. My weight now is one hundred and fifty. I cannot praise PE-RU-NA too highly, for it was a Godsend to me. I got relief from the first half bottle and twelve bottles cured me. I advise all sufferers to take PE-RU-NA."

As an emergency remedy in the home, there is nothing quite the equal of this reliable, time-tried medicine, PE-RU-NA. Thousands place their sole dependence on it for coughs, colds, stomach and bowel trouble, constipation, rheumatism, pains in the back, side and loins and to prevent the grip and Spanish Flu. To keep the blood pure and maintain bodily strength and robustness, take PE-RU-NA. You can buy PE-RU-NA anywhere in either tablet or liquid form.

Philippine Tobacco.

The Phillipine Islands' tobacco exports increased greatly in 1918. In that year 25,700 tons of tobacco were exported, as compared with 6,800 tons in 1917. The bulk of this tobacco was shipped during the early months of 1918, and the later months showed a marked decrease. The exports of cigars, however, showed a steady increase during the entire year, the number shipped being 350,000,000, valued at $7,000,000, as against 281,000,000 valued at $4,500,000, in 1917. Most of this production was absorbed by the American market. The increase is largely due to government supervision in order to guarantee the quality of all shipments to the United States.

Sulky Plow Economy

When you buy one of our John Deere Stag Sulky Plows, you buy no unnecessary parts. The Stag is all plow. Every one of its few parts aid directly in making it easier for you and the horses to do better plowing.

It is easy to operate the Stag—a boy can do it. By means of the landing lever, the operator can easily guide the plow around stones or other obstructions, or hold the plow on side hills, maintaining a full width cut.

The Stag's advantages have all been fully demonstrated. It is a favorite in all great farming sections because of its real economy. We want you to investigate these advantages.

The New Edison

The Three Million Dollar Phonograph

THOMAS A. EDISON invented the phonograph in 1877. Later he improved his original phonograph to a point where his business advisor said to him: "You now have the best phonograph in existence. Let's go ahead and make it."

Mr. Edison shook his head and replied: "I am not going to put out a new phonograph until it is so perfect that its reproduction of music cannot be detected from the original music."

Thomas A. Edison spent three million dollars in cold cash to develop an instrument which matched the human voice and all kinds of musical instruments so perfectly that the original could not be told from the reproduction—or RE-CREATION, as it is now called.

HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE

The young men of the High School here took part in a Debate Thursday night. The Subject for Debate was "Resolved that the Pen is Mightier than the Sword." Some very able arguments were produced by both sides also some very amusing comparisons were made. Both sides doing their best to disprove the others arguments and by so doing proving their point, however the Judges, Messrs. Ray Cook, Raymond Felix and E. S. Howard gave a decision in favor of the Negative side which is the first time the Negative side has won a Debate since the Society was formed. The Boys taking part were, on the Affirmative, Edward Hoover, Dick Williamson and Hulbert Crowder, while on the Negative side were Odie Harper, Robert Carson and Herbert Porter. Miss Lou Bell Williams also gave a very amusing recital which was enjoyed.

SAYS NEIGHBORS GIVEN SURPRISE BY THE CHANGE

Can't Understand Remarkable Improvement Trutona Wrong!

Woman Avers

Owensboro, Ky., Oct. 29.—"My neighbors who knew the condition I was in, before I began taking Trutona, are surprised to see me working again," Mrs. Fannie Grundy, well known Owensboro woman of 616 Triple street, said recently. "I'm certainly grateful for this new tonic, for it has given me more relief than any other medicine I've ever taken—and I've tried most all of them," she added.

"I had been troubled with ulceration of the stomach for the past 20 years. My bowels were in a very bad condition. I would be severely constipated for three or four days at a time and then, when I'd take some harsh laxative I'd have a hard time to check the bowel action. Naturally I became very weak."

"I had been bedfast for six weeks before I began taking Trutona. You can imagine my surprise, when at the end of the first weeks treatment I was able to get out of bed and began to do my housework again. I'm eating food now that I haven't dared to touch in the past two years. Why, I can even eat corn bread now and that's one food that used to make me very sick. I have never before given a testimonial for any medicine, but I feel that the public should know of the wonderful relief I've gained from a one-dollar bottle of Trutona."

Trutona is now being introduced and explained in Hartford, Ky., at the Ohio County Drug Co., is sold in Beaver Dam at the Beaver Dam Drug Co., and in Rockport at F. R. Her's Drug store.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 19.—"You have not before failed to make generous response to the call for laudable endeavor, and the good you have thus done, that things that are worth while whose accomplishment you have aided, furnish adequate and satisfying compensation for the sacrifices you have made therefor.

"You recognize it as of the law of our responsible lives that there is ever present the duty to help whenever there exists real need of help.

"And now, in trustful confidence in your continuing helpful mood and happily aware of your ability to extend your benefactions, I call your attention to the Kentucky Children's Home Society, in the faith that you, seeing its high aim, may prove your ready willingness to bestow some financial help to it from ample store.

"That society was incorporated nearly a fourth of a century ago, and its mission is and has been to seek, to find and to take charge of, under orders of the County Courts, destitute and neglected children, those on whose innocent lives toward circumstance lay a heavy hand, little folks who are sound in mind and body, and yet ineligible to admission to any other of our charitable institutions. They are a class to themselves, with no one in their communities charged with the duty of looking after their care or rearing.

But the society undertakes to rescue them from their crushing condition by providing them with food, raiment and housing, and a period of training in the Receiving Home, until there can be found educated, moral and Christian homes in which to place them during their non-age and thus make of them useful citizens, instead of a burden to the State.

"My object is to commend the society and its purposes to the people, and to suggest that the buildings and grounds now occupied are not commensurate with the demands upon the institution nor adequate to the great work in hand. And so it is the desire of the society to acquire and pay for a suitable tract of land situated near the city of Louisville, and erect thereon a number of small buildings on the village cottage plan, a modern children's village, for the accommodation of the children and the employees in charge. To secure and thus equip such property it is necessary

They give a new joy to the visitors to our store; for everybody now FEELS THE NEED OF THINGS—outer clothing, under garments, Shoes, Stockings—everything for warmth as well as smart appearance. Then, how ambitious the house-keeper becomes, when there is that new snap in the air. It seems so worth while to lay the new Rug, to hang the new Curtains, to place new Towels in the bathroom and on the kitchen rack.

Now you will more fully appreciate the wisdom of the Coats and Suits, that are as fetching in appearance as they are sensible in service.

The New Millinery
The New Blouses
The New Silks and Dress Goods
The Wonderful Trimmings
The Charming Veils
The Gloves, the Stockings, the Ribbons,

all beckon in their most alluring manner; for every one of them has a promise of style becomingness and service for their new possessors. COME,

You can't be always looking for bargains, you'd spend a lot of time doing it and you'd probably not find many at that. But, when a bargain meets you and looks you in the face, and says: "Here I am," it will probably pay you to stop a minute and give attention.

That's what's happening to you now; this is our saletime; when we get together all the odds and ends and broken lines. Then we mark new prices on them, so low that even the person who has all the clothes and other things to wear that he or she may needs, ought to buy for future use; another person who needs some things gets a real price picnic.

Just take our word for it; this store is full of bargains right now at PROFIT-SHARING PRICES. You'd better drop in and give them the once over; money in it for you.

HARTFORD 100 YEARS AGO.

(Contributed by Morris Barnett, founder of I. P. Morton's Ledger.)

A contract was closed with Benjamin and John Field for two years supply of salt which was delivered in 16 wagon loads aggregating 50,

000 lbs. and costing 3 cents per lb.

In the ledger containing the transaction of the forties, 20 years later,

Wm. C. Rowan seems to have taken the job. His deliverers were made weekly and in barrel lots. This salt was mined in the Buford neighborhood. Does anybody know the exact location of these old salt wells or mines? If these men were able to procure so much salt with the rude methods of those days, why cannot a fortune be made with modern methods?

Another business enterprise that has long ago had its books balanced, was that of Jacob Wood, hatter. He made about 6 varieties and, prices raised from $1 to $10. His long suit was the making of beaver and fur hats. It seems that Mr. Morton would sell these hats on a com-mision basis, for on this date 100 years ago, he bought 9 of these hats which were quickly sold to the following gentlemen: Leonard Bean,

James Fitzhugh, Harrison D. Taylor

William S. Barrett, Christopher

Jackson, Elijah Phipps, Stephen

Stalter, Andrew Rowan and Samuel

O. Peyton.

Charles Henderson paid his bill with a check on the bank in Hartford.

Vol W. Peyton drove 2 sows and pigs to town and received $7.50.

for them.

To John Clark was paid $1.00 for ferrying Peyton's wagons across the creek going to and coming from The Yellow Banks.

John Calhoun paid $6.00 for purchases and received a discount of 25 per cent by paying it in silver.

Mr. Emory Schroeder spent several days in Central City last week.

James Stucky says, "Rat Cost Me FOR SALE HUNTING

$125 For Plumbing Bills"

"We couldn't tell what was clogging up our toilet and drains. We had to tear up floor, pipes, etc., found a rat's nest in basement. They had choked the pipes with refuse. The plumber's bill was $125. RAT-SNAP cleaned the rodent out." Three sizes 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by J. S. Casebier & Co., and Taylors Drug Store, Beaver Dam; Walker Myrtle, Horse Branch; Acton Bros., and Williams & Duke, Hartford, Ky.
